Cambria and the Camp Cambria Foundation proudly announced the opening of the Cambria Recreation Center. A major addition to nonprofit Camp Courage, a longtime Cambria partner, the 26,600-square-foot facility in Maple Lake, MN, expands access to recreation, wellness and connection for children and adults with disabilities.

Fundraising for the $17.7 million project included $10 million in support from the Minnesota State Legislature and a $2.5 million donation from the Camp Cambria Foundation.

At the heart of the facility is an ADA-accessible aquatic center spanning more than 8,000 square feet, featuring a temperature-controlled, zero-entry pool, and a 12,900-square foot gymnasium with a stage for performing arts and a climbing wall.

“The Cambria Recreation Center reflects what’s possible when purposeful public and private partnership come together to do good things,” said Marty Davis, CEO, Cambria. “This is an opportunity for people with all types of health adversity to build self-esteem and success through joyful, uplifting activities that enrich their pursuit of personal conquest. Camp Courage is a Minnesota treasure!”

As part of the project, the Davis family, founders of Cambria, donated all the Cambria quartz surfaces throughout key areas of the facility, including seven shower rooms, six restrooms, an open shower wall in the pool area, gym-viewing ledges, and wall cladding in hallways. These features were thoughtfully designed to support accessibility while delivering long-term performance in a high-use commercial environment.

The latest Camp Cambria Foundation donation builds on more than a decade of partnership between Cambria and Camp Courage. It began in 2014 when the Camp Cambria Foundation established Camp Cambria, a weeklong camp for children living with juvenile arthritis, hosted at Camp Courage.

Life to date, the Camp Cambria Foundation has donated more than $5 million to Camp Courage, supporting a range of renovation projects—the Lakeside Dining Hall, Health & Wellness Nursing Center, Skye Clubhouse for Arts, and providing air conditioning to the Woodlands cabins—all designed to improve accessibility, safety, quality, and ambience. In addition, Cambria’s employees have devoted more than 5,000 volunteer hours hosting campers at Camp Courage.

"This is a place where individuals of all abilities can come together, build confidence, and experience the joy of movement and connection," said John LeBlanc, CEO and President of True Friends. "We are deeply grateful to Cambria and the Camp Cambria Foundation for helping make this vision a reality."
